ABOUT

Angel Chreston joined Hanna Brophy as an associate in the Oakland office in 2017. She defends self-insured employers, including public entities, and insurance carriers in all aspects of workers' compensation litigation.

Angel graduated from the University of California, Davis, with a Bachelor of Arts degree in political science, and a minor in English. After earning her undergraduate degree, she attended the University of California Davis, School of Law (King Hall), where she graduated with her Juris Doctor and a certificate in public interest. While at King Hall, Angel studied negotiation, served on the Trial Practice Honors Board, and interned for various district attorneys' offices.

In her free time, Angel enjoys reading, hiking, cooking, and spending time with her family.

Professional Activities

Angel is a regular presenter and writer of Workers Compensation Bingo. She also gives regular in-house presentations to insurance carriers, third party administrators, and public entities on new workers' compensation laws.
