

Cory Freberg

Cory Freberg began working for our Riverside office in 2018. He represents insurance carriers and self-insured employers in all aspects of workers' compensation defense.

Cory began his career in workers' compensation defense litigation in April 2012, after graduating from University of La Verne, College of Law. The majority of his experience has been in representing self-insured governmental entities and municipalities, police and fire departments, school districts, hospitals, and legally uninsured state agencies.

To be "green," Cory purchases locally grown organic food, uses public transportation, and has implemented a recycling system in his home to reduce waste.
